BE ACTIVE

Learning involves more than just a text book. Become involved in physical fitness, drill and ceremony, uniform inspections, and training events that take you beyond the classroom and directly into the decision making role. Work with your peers to accomplish a common goal while also addressing your individual strengths and weaknesses at the same time. Create, develop, and maintain high standards for yourself and those around you.

BE BOLD

Leading is hard. Learning to be a great leader is harder. The greatest decision you can make in life is to focus on improving yourself and tuning out the negativity around you. When you focus and develop your skills, confidence, and strategy you will be able to help not just yourself, but those around you. The Cadet Core will develop you into a leader whether you decide to join the military or pursue a civilian career, or both. Either way, leading is essential to success.
